There are many reasons to need to modify videos. You can learn how to edit videos using both high-end software and cheap applications, but usually, you can apply complex video editing features to your projects in a few simple steps. Editing is like planting seeds, the seeds you plant will grow and mature into a beautiful plant. In this article, we are going to share with you a basic yet effective method of how to cut videos, as well as other editing tips that you can use in order to make your projects look different and unique. How to trim videos One of the basic features that you can use to to produce wonderful videos is a video editor. You can either purchase a program which offers you tons of features or you can spend a few hours learning the basics of video editing so that you can use a program like iMovie to trim your videos. The first step is to select the video from which you want to cut. You can either click on the video that you want to use and watch it appear in the editing software, or you can select it from the project (in some programs, there is the option of adding multiple files and folders to the project) by pressing the spacebar. You need to select the start and end points of the footage that you want to keep. You can move the beginning and end points using the slider, which is located on the top of the software. In a few minutes, your video will be trimmed. In some programs, you can use mouse clicks to delete segments of the video, while in others, you have to use the keyboard keys of your keyboard. Of course, if you plan on creating video clips, iMovie is the one to go with, but even if you do not plan on creating a video, you can still use it to clip the video. All you need is to cut your footage in desired cuts. Editing tips

The above is how you can trim videos in iMovie or other simple video editing software. You can also edit videos in many different ways. For example, you can also cut the video in different frames using Keyframes. You can also use the add-on called the Speed effect. A good video editor can also be used to speed up or slow down a video. You can also re-arrange the order of the video by simply dragging the clips you want to appear first and the rest on the bottom. The video can also be re-designed by using all kinds of elements and effects such as the star

A method for comparing surgical approaches in patients with malignant pleural mesothelioma. The optimal surgical approach for patients with malignant pleural mesothelioma (MPM) remains controversial. Operative approach is usually determined by expert opinion. We therefore present an objective method for comparing surgical approaches in patients with MPM. Thirty-two patients with MPM who underwent pleurectomy or decortication with intraoperative echocardiography (IOG) guidance were included. We compared IOG-guided pleurectomy to decortication, and we assessed variables including operation duration, blood loss, postoperative complications, operating field, time to tolerance of diet, time until discharge, and mortality rate. These variables were compared using the paired t test and multiple regression analysis. Twenty-one patients underwent IOG-guided pleurectomy and 11 underwent IOG-guided decortication. Mean operative duration was 538 ± 64.4 min for pleurectomy versus 402.3 ± 42.9 min for decortication ($p = 0.02$). Mean blood loss was more with pleurectomy than with decortication (837.1 ± 187.6 ml vs. 253.7 ± 89.9 ml, $p = 0.02$). Operating field limitations were significantly longer in decortication than pleurectomy (51.2 ± 13.3 min vs. 24
