The blood test detects two proteins that originate from breast tissue. Researchers are eager to learn if these proteins, namely HER2 and EGFR, can reliably predict the growth of early breast cancer and if they can provide new treatment options. Herceptin and cetuximab, two of the most effective breast cancer drugs are based on this research. The National Cancer Institute has stated that this drug is one of the most successful anti-cancer drugs on the market and that it's given to millions of people. It has been found to treat late stage breast cancer and has produced positive 3e33713323
