A: It seems from the picture that the black spaces are missing from the image. If you right-click on the image, you can see that you are missing the NO_BRUSH_STYLE flag. This will give you a black image as you want it. On a side note - using white background is really bad practice. U.S. Pat. Nos. 5,318,792, 5,213,078 and 5,099,832, the disclosures of which are incorporated by reference herein, disclose a new class of dicarbamate compounds having xcx2-3-aminomethyl-xcx3-aminomethyl side chains. These compounds are renin inhibitors, useful in treating hypertension and congestive heart failure. Renin is a proteolytic enzyme of the aspartyl protease class (also called pepsin A activity class). It catalyzes the hydrolysis of the peptide bond between the carboxyl-terminal residue of the substrate and the amino-terminal residue of the substrate, thereby releasing the inactive enzyme-substrate complex and liberating angiotensinogen. The renin-angiotensin system plays a central role in normal cardiovascular homeostasis. Its components include the renin-angiotensin substrate, the enzyme renin, and the products of renin-catalyzed reactions, both peptide products (angiotensin I and angiotensin II) and substrate (angiotensinogen). Renin has been isolated from mammalian tissues, most notably the kidney, where it has been shown to be present in very low concentration. It has also been found in the mesenteric nervous tissue, the granules of polymorphonuclear leukocytes, and certain cells of the immune system. In the rat, immunohistochemical techniques have localized renin to the epithelium of the juxtaglomerular apparatus of the kidney, including the macula densa and the distal tubule. Human renin has been found in both normal kidney tissue as well as Wilm's tumor. Inhibitors of renin have been sought as agents for treatment of hypertension, renal failure, and myocardial infarction. The best known of such inhibitors, enalapril, enalaprilat, and lisinopril, are commercially marketed as drugs for treating hypertension and congestive heart failure. However,

Very easy to use. Runs from the prompt. Works well. Thanks. A: The logs contain the text, which is easier for you to read than the ASCII values. 415 So.2d 1222 (1982) Ted FULLER, Appellant, v. STATE of Florida, Appellee. No. AZ-126. District Court of Appeal of Florida, First District. June 24, 1982. Rehearing Denied August 23, 1982. Ted Fullmer, appellant, pro se, Jim Smith, Atty. Gen., David P. Gauldin, Asst. Atty. Gen., Tallahassee, for appellee. PER CURIAM. Appellant is before this Court appealing the trial court's denial of his motion for post-conviction relief pursuant to Rule 3.850, Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure. We affirm in part and reverse in part. *1223 Appellant was indicted on December 12, 1977, on charges of kidnapping and aggravated battery. He was found guilty as charged following a jury trial and sentenced to life imprisonment for kidnapping and thirty years for aggravated battery. Appellant appealed to this Court his convictions, asserting nine points of error. We affirmed. Fuller v. State, 382 So.2d 65 (Fla. 1st DCA 1980). On October 31, 1979, appellant filed with the trial court his motion for post-conviction relief pursuant to Rule 3.850. The trial court denied the motion without requiring an evidentiary hearing and without attaching portions of the files and records conclusively refuting the allegations of the appellant. Appellant filed a "Motion For Leave to Petition for Certiorari to Supreme Court," in the United States Supreme Court. The Supreme Court denied the petition. Appellant here alleges that the two matters were consolidated for purposes of seeking review of the trial court's denial of his Rule 3.850 motion. In an order denying appellant's motion for post-conviction relief, the trial court is required to attach portions of the files and records conclusively refuting the allegations of the appellant. Section 924.33, Florida Statutes (1977). This provision, however, does not apply to state habeas corpus petitions. The trial court's failure to attach portions of the files and records, pursuant to Section 924.33, Florida Statutes (1977), constitutes reversible error. 3e33713323
