The degradation of acetate is the initial step in the methanogenesis (formation of methane from the hydrogen and carbon dioxide produced by acetate degradation) process. This process can be enhanced by a diverse biocenosis, which includes both generalist and specialist species. Acetate degradation is part of the first step in the biochemical methane production process. Acetate degradation is a critical first step in the anaerobic, fermentative, and anaerobic-hydrolytic degradation of glucose and starch under optimum conditions. It is an object of the present invention to provide a method for enhanced anaerobic acetate degradation in a bioreactor including an inoculum comprising one or more specific anaerobic acetate degrading bacterium(s) for enhancing the anaerobic acetate degradation.Q:
