HyperMotion Game Engine FIFA 22's HyperMotion Game Engine and its ability to use the improved physics engine will deliver more realistic and authentic on-ball movement and ball control. This will help capture more natural and responsive on-ball play making sure both players feel more involved and integrated in the action. FIFA 22 will feature improved AI control on the ball. The introduction of improved collision detection will make it possible for the AI to more naturally react to the ball, more effectively close down space, react to defensive movements and execute an accurate off-the-ball movement, allowing for increased protection around the defensive line while also making it easier for the attackers to find space on the ball. A variety of AI improvements The AI's ability to identify and move around opponents will improve allowing for better intelligence and understanding of the game. In addition, the AI is capable of intuitive off-the-ball movement, meaning they will become more dynamic when chasing after the ball. World-class Refereeing is back Referees have once again been upgraded to FIFA 22. The new FIFA Referee System will include a new game manager tool. This will help referees and the teams communicate with each other, ensuring that the referees are always up to date on the game situation and that they are able to do their job efficiently. The new tool is designed to help referees make more decisions on the pitch. A simple on-screen tool will be used to quickly display all possible outcomes of a match without the need of generating a report. A number of referee tools and features have been added such as the ability to reject foul calls within the right-hand corner of the screen, to quickly decide which penalty they want to use. Seamless Match Engine The new and improved FIFA Soccer Engine enables players to see their opponents more clearly and to better track their movement on the pitch in a more realistic and realistic way. The game engine will use more than 3,000 data points to take into account all the different game variables. This includes, for instance, the number of players on the pitch, the physical characteristics of the players and the weather conditions. FIFA 22 will feature FIFA Ultimate Team improvements. FIFA Ultimate Team will feature more than 40,000 new and improved players to create new strategies and adapt existing ones. Players will also have access to more than 250 legendary football players including Diego Maradona, Pelé, Ronaldo
