Genetic characterization of nosocomial Acinetobacter baumannii strains from a tertiary hospital in Spain and their drug resistance profile. Acinetobacter baumannii isolates from clinical specimens were recovered from a 600-bed tertiary hospital between 2008 and 2010. We characterized a collection of 37 strains to determine their genetic profile and antimicrobial susceptibility patterns. Thirty-one strains showed multidrug resistance to all antibiotics, being the most common resistance pattern to amikacin, piperacillin, ciprofloxacin, gentamicin, cefepime, and imipenem. Thirteen strains were macrolide-resistant, and the mef(A) gene was detected in 11 cases. Six strains were multiresistant to glycopeptides. The erm(B) gene was detected in seven isolates. The gyrA point mutation was the most common mutation, and the gonococcal quinolone resistance-determining region (QRDR) was absent in these strains. Five plasmid-mediated quinolone resistance (PMQR) genes were identified by PCR: aac(6')-Ib-cr, qnrB, qnrS, and aac(6')-Ib-cr/qnrB genes coexisted in Download Link: How to prove that a given regular graph is the union of two cliques? Let G be a graph that is simple, and without loops or parallel edges. We say that G is regular if there is an integer $k \geq 2$ such that any two vertices are connected with k other vertices.

How to prove that G is the union of two cliques? A clique in a graph G is a set $S \subseteq V(G)$ of mutually adjacent vertices. A: I suspect this is correct, but I'm going to give a full proof for completeness. We may assume that G is connected, otherwise, if G is disconnected, and G_1 and G_2 are the two connected components, we can take $S \subseteq G_1$ and $T \subseteq G_2$. By the given definition of a regular graph, we can pick ℓ vertices $v_1, \dots, v_\ell \in V(G)$, such that for each $v \in V(G)$, there are ℓ vertices x_1, \dots, x_ℓ in $V(G)$, such that v is adjacent to each of v_i 's. Now pick the cliques C_1 and C_2 such that $C_1 \subseteq \{v_1, \dots, v_\ell\}$, and $C_2 \subseteq \{x_1, \dots, x_\ell\}$. It's not hard to check that $C_1 \cup C_2 = V(G)$. If there are edges between C_1 and C_2 , then we're done, since G is a clique-sum. If not, then C_1 and C_2 are disjoint. In this case, we can pick another clique C_3
